A Permanent Successor Recalls the Death of Brave Mrs. Ogle.

FOUND BY FLOODS AT HER POST.

Of Those Who Were With Her But One Body Has Been Recovered.

THE DEAD-LINE MAN CAUGHT AT WORK.

A Letter From a Kansas Farmer Who Wants a Wife From Johnstown.

The appointment of a successor to Mrs. Ogle recalls the story of how shestaid at her post of duty until the flood swept her away with her companions, and the line man, who was caught at his work on top of a telegraph pole. The Bureau of Information has received a letter from a Kansas farmer who wants for a wife a girl saved from the flood. The State officers are leaving the town.

PRON A STAFF CORRESPONDENT, JOHNSTOWN, July 6.—Superintendent Rowe, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, has appointed Mr. S. W. Kirk manager of the company at this point. Mr. Kirk was formally manager at Connellsville, Pa., and is one of the best men in the Western Union service.

Mr. Kirk takes the place vacated by the death of Mrs. H. M. Ogle, who was lost with three operators, one messenger boy. ception of the latter, none of the bodies have been recovered. The remains of the lineman was found in the river, above the stone bridge. He had his climbers on, and the spur attached to the right leg was caught in a piece of log in which it was firmly imbedded. How the log happened to catch on to the spur is a mystery, but it is supposed the lineman straddled the tim-ber while going down the river and in his ath struggles sank the spur deep into the log.

When the dam burst the lineman was on the office pole cutting out the wires. The telegraph office stood in front of Wood, Morrell & Co.'s general offices, and the occupants were on the second floor of the former building. This was Mrs. Ogle's residence, and the telegraph instruments were on the first floor. When the water flooded the lower portof the town Mrs. Ogle and her force went to the second floor and taking the instruments with them began work.

DIED AT THE POST OF DUTY. Only one wire was being used when the waters from the dam burst upon them. The four operators and one messenger went down in the crash and since then nothing has been heard from them.

The lineman had been ordered but a few minutes before to "cut out" all the through wires which were then in such a crippled condition that the operators in Pittsburg could not work them. By making a through connection it was expected that the wires East and West would work all right, and while doing this Lineman Jackson met his death. He was on the pole at the time with one leg thrown over the cross arm when the pole was swept away. When his body was discovered his watch and papers were found to be stolen. A fund has been started by Lieutenant Rowe for the benefit of the lineman's family, who live at Derry.

Mrs. Ogle was one of the best known op-Pennsylvania, and was the widow of Charles Ogle, of Somerset county. The latter was the first volunteer in the Civil War from that county, and was killed it the battle of Malvern Hill on the Poto-mac. He was the son of Hon. Charles Ogle, who was credited with having deteated Martin Van Buren for President by making his famous "gold spoon" speeche during that campaign. A PLUCKY WIDOW.

When her husband was killed, Mrs. Ogle learned the business of telegraphy at theold Somerset office, and when competent, was given charge of the United States Telegraph Company's office at that point. At the time of the operators' strike in 1870, Mrs. Ogle was ordered to Philadelphia and there rendered valuable aid to the company. was known among the operators in Pitts-burg as "Mother Ogle." Her quick and ready repartee on the wire made many of the boys afraid of "Q," her private signal. She had been the manager here for the past 20

At 9 o'clock Friday morning, when the water was five feet high on the first floor of asked her to go to a place of safety. She refused to go, saying that duty made her re-main at her post. Had she gone she would certainly be alive to-day.

A WIFE FROM THE FLOOD.

A Kansas Man Applies for One-Halburg House Inquired For.

JOHNSTOWN, July 6.- The number of of letters received by the Bureau of Information have fallen off considerably within the past week, but an occasional ludicrous one turns up. To-day a long letter was received from a man in Kansas asking the bureau to find a wife among the flood sufferers. The writer stated that he was a farmer, and owned two well-stocked farms in the vicinity of Par-He is 35 years of age and wanted a a good looking young woman between the age of 20 and 30 years. She must be educated and know something about house-keeping. The officers of the department have had many inquiries for relies, but this is the first time, they say, that anybody has Root ginger, per lb..... asked for a living one. The man preferred a woman who had been rescued from the flood, and said he would marry her within 5 lbs malt. Another letter was received this week from a mining camp in Colorado, ask-ing for information in regard to Hulburt House. The writer stated that he had read the name among the lost in THE DISPATCH, and having a brother the Disparch, and having a brother bearing the same name, he wrote to inquire if it was he. After diligent inquiry it was ascertained by the officers of the bureau that there had been no one of the name here, and that the "Hulburt House," the big hetel which had been swept away by the floody was what had misled the inquirer. A letter was received on Monday from a A letter was received on Monday from a woman in Hanover, Germany, asking for information in regard to her husband, who had left her but a few months before the flood. The letter was written in German, and one of the clerks had to reply in the same language. It was found that the woman's husband was alive, but had had a very narrow escape in getting out of his

All Else of the German Lutheran Church i Literally Blotted Out.

(FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.) JOHNSTOWN, July 6 .- The only thing left of the German Lutheran Church on Locust street was to-day turned over to one of the members of the congregation. The sexton carried to Mrs. Ludwig, one of the wealthiest and most influential women of the church, the key to the edifice which the sexton had in his possession at the time of

Where the church and pasteral residence once stood is now nothing but a crumbled mass of bricks and mortar. There is not even a piece of one of the pews on the ground to show that a church stood upon the foundation. The pastor, Rev. John Lichtenberg, and his family, were drowned, together with the majority of the members of his congregation. The church was a hand-some brick building, but was swept away as if it had been an egg shell, by two locometives from the Conemaugh roundhouse which crashed into it. Mrs. Ludwig treasures the key very highly and will keep it as a memento of the flood. Services will be held by all the different denominations in the moraing. Where the church buildings have been destroyed, the services will be held in the open air, adjoining where they stood. The German Catholies will worship in their church building which has been sufficiently repaired to afford the people shelter.

STRIKING THE TENTS.

The State Officers Leaving Johnstown for Their Homes. (FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

JOHNSTOWN, July 6.-Workmen have already begun taking down the tents at headquarters, preparatory to breaking camp on Tuesday. A great many of the State officers are leaving for their homes to-night spend Sunday. Some of then will return Monday morning, while others will leave their work in such shape that their clerks can finish it up. Tuesday afternoon will witness the depart-ure of all the military with the exception of Company F, of the Fourteenth Regiment, which will remain here probably all sum-mer under the command of Captain Nesbit. The boys will be paid Monday. Charles Gramm, chief steward of the camp, who has won great praise from the officers for his culinary efforts, is about to resign his position and leave for his home.

MEASURES OF SAFETY.

What the Railroad Company Proposes to do About the Federal Street Crossing-Manager Taylor Explains Some Sugges-

The letter which James W. Collins, Esq., wrote to John H. Hampton, making certain suggestions for the Fort Wayne road to adopt at the Federal street crossing was and one lineman in the flood. With the ex- submitted to General Manager McCrea. An effort was made to see Mr. McCrea about it yesterday, but he had gone home sick. Previous to that he had expressed his willingness to be interviewed on the subject.

Mr. Collins made these suggestions to secure the public safety: To have the bells rung on all the engines approaching the crossing; to place an electric bell in such a position to give notice of the approach of trains from the East, and third, to erect a suitable tower for a watchman.

In the absence of Mr. McCrea, Manager Taloy, of the road, was seen concerning Mr. Collins' letter. He said: "I cannot speak for Mr. McCrea, and I do not know what he will do, but I do not approve of the tower for the watchmen. At the Federal street crossing very frequently the men have to pull people out from under the gates, so eager are the people to cross the tracks. If he were located in a tower, this could not be done, and if anyone was killed the road would be held responsible. The gates are intended as a warning to people, and if they persist in trying to pass over when they are down we can't help it. If we put up certain harriers there to keen the people back

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Archbishop Ryan this morning raised Mr. Thomas E. Sherman, son of General Sherman, to the order of deaconship. There was a large number of elergy, friends and relatives of the young candidate present during the ceremonies, which took place in the Archbishop's private chapel. The beautiful chapel had been still further beautified by a liberal and choice selection of the rarest exotics, and the effect on entering was noticeably expressed by those who were fortunate enough to be in attendance. At 7 o'clock the procession marched in the following order from the vestry to the chapel: Crossbearers, acolytes, sanctuary boys, clergy, the candidate, followed by the Archbishop and his attendants. When the sanctuary had been reached the Archbishop proceeded to the side of the altar and was invested by his attendants in his pontifical robes, the clergy and sanctuary boys mean-while kneeling around the altar in the form of a semi-circle. After the investiture the Archbishop proceeded to the altar and began the mass, when, at the end of the epistle, the Archbishop called the candidate by his name, and delivered a long address. He particularly called the attention of the candidate to the virtues of St. Stephen, the first deacon, who was stoned to death, and reminded the new deacon of the virtues, such as chastity, con-stancy and perseverance, which illuminated

The gates are intended as a warning to people, and if they persist in trying to pass over when they are down we can't help it. If we put up creatin barriers there to keep the people back, then the city would object.

"We had thought of the electric bell before Mr. Collins made his suggestions, and the materials have been ordered. It will be put in in a very short time.

"Has the scheme to build elevated tracks been abandoned?" was asked.

"Oh, no, the railroad is ready to go ahead at any time, but the Councils are responsible for the delay."

Sherman. A white lace alb was the gift of his mother. The work on this was done by Miss Martin, the young deacon's nurse, and he said to-day that the value he placed upon this was immeasurable.

The chalice and vestments will be used next Monday, when Rev. Father Sherman celebrates his first mass. In addition to the relatives and intimate friends of, the candidate who were present on Friday at the conferring of the orders of sub-deacon, there attended to-day John Ewing, of Lancaster, O., son of Judge Philemon Ewing; Mr. Drew, Mr. Fairfield Papin and Miss Eustis, of St. Louis, a niece of Archbishop Kenof St. Louis, a niece of Archbishop Ken rick, and Miss Martin, of Cincinuati.

rick, and Miss Martin, of Cincinuati.

The ceremonies to-morrow morning during the ordination to the priesthood will be very solemn and imposing. Hundreds have made application for admission to the chapel, but have been refused. Only friends and relatives of the young clergyman and prominent members of the clergy will be admitted, the greater portion of the latter being Jesuits. Mr. Sherman says that he has sent out invitations to nearly all the members of the Society of Jesus in this part of the country.
